(LIVESTREAMS)* Edmonton Oilers vs Colorado Avalanche Live Stream NHL Hockey Game On 11.03.2026

the Colorado Avalanche hosted the Edmonton Oilers at Ball Arena on Tuesday night, March 10, 2026.

The game featured the two most electric players in hockey—Connor McDavid and Nathan MacKinnon—squaring off in a battle for NHL supremacy. With both teams sporting revamped rosters following a busy trade deadline, the night was a showcase of speed, skill, and strategic adjustments.

[Tuesday, March 10, 2026]

 Game Summary

Team	1st	2nd	3rd	Final
Edmonton Oilers	1	1	2	4
Colorado Avalanche	1	2	2	5

 Match Recap: A High-Octane Thriller

First Period: Setting the Pace

The energy in Denver was palpable from the opening draw. Colorado, coming off back-to-back shootout wins, looked to use their home-ice advantage where they lead the NHL with a .806 points percentage.

However, it was the Oilers who struck first. Connor McDavid capitalized on a rare defensive lapse by Cale Makar, driving the net and tucking a backhand past Mackenzie Blackwood just six minutes into the frame. The Avalanche responded late in the period when Nathan MacKinnon fired a signature one-timer on the power play to knot the game at 1-1.

Second Period: The Avalanche Surge

The second period has been Colorado's playground all season—they lead the league with 85 second-period goals. That trend continued tonight. Newly acquired Nazem Kadri, returning to the Avs lineup in a "Cup Classic" night honoring the 2022 team, intercepted a pass in the neutral zone to set up Martin Necas for a go-ahead goal.

Edmonton's Leon Draisaitl answered back with a power-play marker of his own, but Colorado regained the lead before the intermission. Nicolas Roy, another recent addition, deflected a Brett Kulak slap shot to make it 3-2.

Third Period: The Stars Collide

The final frame was a whirlwind. Edmonton's Vasily Podkolzin tied the game early, and for a moment, it looked like the Oilers would steal the points when Evan Bouchard hammered a blue-line blast to give Edmonton a 4-3 lead with five minutes remaining.

But the Avalanche's resilience proved too much. MacKinnon notched his second of the night (and 45th of the season) to tie it, and with just 14 seconds left on the clock, Cale Makar redeemed his early error by weaving through the Oilers' defense and scoring the game-winner on a spectacular solo effort.

 Top Performers

Colorado Avalanche

Nathan MacKinnon: 2 Goals, 1 Assist (107 points on the season).

Cale Makar: 1 Goal (Game Winner), 2 Assists.

Mackenzie Blackwood: 28 saves on 32 shots.

Edmonton Oilers

Connor McDavid: 1 Goal, 2 Assists (Leads NHL with 111 points).

Leon Draisaitl: 1 Goal, 1 Assist.

Evan Bouchard: 1 Goal, 1 Assist.

 Season Impact & Standings

This win keeps the Avalanche (44-10-9) at the very top of the NHL standings with 97 points. They remain the betting favorites for the Stanley Cup, bolstered by a 34-0-0 record when leading after the second period.

The Oilers (31-26-8) remain in a dogfight for playoff positioning in the Pacific Division. While their offense remains elite (leading the league in expected first-period goals), their defensive consistency and goaltending—now featuring Tristan Jarry—will be the focus heading into the final month of the season.