

~PLAY! Nashville Predators vs Seattle Kraken Live Stream NHL Hockey Game On 11.03.2026

the Seattle Kraken hosted the Nashville Predators at Climate Pledge Arena on Tuesday, March 10, 2026. Both teams entered the night fighting to stay relevant in the wild-card race, but it was Seattle that found its rhythm late to secure a vital 3-2 victory.

[Tuesday, March 10, 2026]

The win provides the Kraken with much-needed breathing room in the Pacific Division, while the Predators continue to struggle with consistency on their late-season road trip.

---

? Game at a Glance

Team	1st	2nd	3rd	Final
Nashville Predators	1	0	1	2
Seattle Kraken	0	1	2	3

Export to Sheets

---

? Match Recap: Resilience at the Sound

First Period: Nashville Strikes Early

The Predators, desperate to snap a four-game road losing streak, came out with a physical forecheck that caught Seattle off guard. Steven Stamkos, who has been the offensive engine for Nashville all season, notched his 31st goal of the year just four minutes into the game. Capitalizing on a power-play opportunity, Stamkos unleashed a trademark one-timer from the left circle that beat Joey Daccord clean.

Seattle struggled to find their skating legs in the opening twenty minutes, as Nashville's defense, led by Roman Josi, effectively clogged the neutral zone and limited the Kraken to just six shots on goal.

Second Period: The Kraken Wake Up

Head coach Lane Lambert's message during the intermission clearly resonated. The Kraken returned for the second period with a visible "compete level" upgrade. The breakthrough came midway through the frame when Matty Beniers intercepted a clearing attempt and found Jordan Eberle in the slot.

Eberle, recently signed to a two-year extension, showed why he remains the captain of this squad, burying a snap shot to tie the game at 1-1.

The momentum shifted entirely toward the home team, as Daccord made two spectacular saves on Ryan O'Reilly to keep the score deadlocked heading into the final intermission.

Third Period: The Final Push

The third period was a chaotic back-and-forth affair. Seattle took their first lead of the night early in the period when Oliver Bjorkstrand finished a beautiful cross-crease pass from Vince Dunn. However, Nashville refused to go quietly. Filip Forsberg silenced the Seattle crowd just three minutes later, stripping the puck from a Kraken defenseman and scoring on a breakaway to make it 2-2.

With just under five minutes remaining, the game was decided by Seattle's depth. Eeli Tolvanen, facing his former team, found a loose puck during a goal-mouth scramble and poked it past Juuse Saros. The Kraken defense held firm during a frantic 6-on-5 advantage for Nashville in the closing minute to secure the two points.

---

? Top Performers

Seattle Kraken

- Jordan Eberle: 1 Goal, 1 Assist. The veteran leader continues to produce in high-pressure moments.
- Joey Daccord: 29 saves on 31 shots. His second-period heroics prevented Nashville from running away with the game.
- Vince Dunn: 2 Assists, +1 rating. Anchored the top pairing and controlled the transition game.

Nashville Predators

- Steven Stamkos: 1 Power-play Goal. Continues to lead the team in scoring despite the mounting losses.
  - Filip Forsberg: 1 Goal, 4 Shots. Was the most dangerous player on the ice for Nashville throughout the night.
  - Juuse Saros: 24 saves. Kept his team in it despite a lack of offensive support in the second period.
-

? Playoff Picture & Analysis

The victory moves the Kraken to 30-24-9 (69 points), keeping them in the thick of the Pacific Division race. For a team that has dealt with recent injuries to key players like Jaden Schwartz, winning a tight defensive battle against a desperate opponent is a significant morale booster.

The Predators (28-28-8) fall to a .500 record. Despite high-profile veteran additions over the last two seasons, the team is struggling with "working the details," a sentiment echoed by their coaching staff. They remain fourth in the league for goals against, a statistic that haunted them again tonight as they failed to protect two separate leads.

---

? Injury & Roster Notes

- Seattle: Played without Jaden Schwartz (upper-body, out indefinitely). Trade deadline acquisition Bobby McMann remained out due to pending visa paperwork but is expected to debut on Thursday.
  - Nashville: Remained relatively healthy but struggled with fatigue in the third period, playing their third game in five nights.
-

? What's Next?

- Seattle Kraken: Host the league-leading Colorado Avalanche on Thursday, March 12, in a massive test for their defensive structure.
- Nashville Predators: Travel home to Bridgestone Arena to host these same Kraken in a quick-turnaround rematch on Friday, March 20.